"Have you considered a divorce?" Marvin Kolodny asked. Something in Barry's manner finally conveyed the nature of his distress. The light dawned: "You have got your license, haven't you?" She frowned. "You mean quit running together?" "I mean quit everything: running, swimming, practicing. . . ** "Quit practicing?" Her face set. "I can't afford to stop practicing. Gordy, it's time she doesn't use. She hasn't missed it before, and if I'm careful not to let her catch me out again, she'll never miss it" I shook my head. "You're breaking an agreement" "I'm not taking over, though. You know that's just a paranoid fantasy. I use only enough time for practice and no more." I sighed. "You seem to have all the best of it" She snorted. "I wonder. Do you have any idea what it's like being locked up in her head for six months, continuously aware but able to do nothing? If I couldn't get out for a run once in a while, I'd not only get flabby, I'd go mad." She bounced out of the chair and came over to lace her fingers together behind my neck. "What about you? It's three months until January. How can I give up seeing you for three whole months?" we offer with some hesitation this tale of first contact between lowly Human and mighty Sreen. Amanda screamed again. I tried to roll sideways but my body would not respond and I steeled myself for the second, almost surely fatal blow. But, instead, there was the thud of something dropping on the floor. I looked up through a starry haze of pain to see Amanda falling to her knees beside me, crying. "The other end of the rainbow?" asked Hidalgo. Barry was as good as his word and went to Center St. the very next morning to take his third exam. The next moment it was Selene, wholly Selene, who stood there. She hurried across the room and knelt beside me. "Are you all right? You've got blood all over your head." "Sir, I'll ask her, but I don't think she'll come. This is still her operation, you know." He didn't give. "Yes. He was very pleased, but he wants the man's name." "That's fine, but there is an even more important order of business. We have to go out to the dome
