

RETRIEVING HISTORY MEMORY AND IDENTITY FORMATION IN THE EARLY CHURCH

It looked very old. It had been rebuilt and rebuilt again, but not for a long time. Nor had anyone. expression. "Emer," he said, and closed his eyes again. Diamond sat in his own sunny room upstairs, on his comfortable bed, hearing his mother singing as he had been walking almost asleep. The pallor of the werelight had faded, drowned in a fainter. He pondered. All the time he was with Gelluk, he had tried to learn from him, tried to understand what the wizard was telling him. Yet he was certain, now, that Gelluk's ideas, the teaching he so eagerly imparted, had nothing to do with his power or with any true power. Mining and refining were indeed great crafts with their own mysteries and masteries, but Gelluk seemed to know nothing of those arts. His talk of the Allking and the Red Mother was mere words. And not the right words. But how did Otter know that? "I dislike goat cheese," Dulse said. learn an art you had no native gift for. In such discussions they worked out the names that ever fiery tower, the place where stone stairs went up among smoke and fumes. He had to go there. He Golden did not praise the boy, not wanting to making him self-conscious or vain about what might. Dulse considered himself a wordy, impatient man with a short temper. The necessity of not swearing. The true name of a person is a word in the True Speech. An essential element of the talent of the witch, sorcerer, or wizard is the power to know the true name of a child and give the child that name. The knowledge can be evoked and the gift received only under certain conditions, at the right time (usually early adolescence) and in the right place (a spring, pool, or running stream). only imagination can restore the least glimmer of it. If we lie about the past, forcing it to tell. "Then why did you drink?" she asked. I took nothing with me, not even a coat. Unnecessary, they said. They let me keep my. "I'm no good there, you see, Ged," he said. "I am, here. If they'll let me do the work." He looked. But a year or so later he saw Diamond out in the back garden with his playmate Rose. The children were squatting on their haunches, heads close together, laughing. Something intense or uncanny about them made him pause at the window on the stairs landing and watch them. A thing between them was leaping up and down, a frog? a toad? a big cricket? He went out into the garden and came up near them, moving so quietly, though he was a big man, that they in their absorption did not hear him. The thing that was hopping up and down on the grass between their bare toes was a rock. When Diamond raised his hand the rock jumped up in the air, and when he shook his hand a little the rock hovered in the air, and when he flipped his fingers downward it fell to earth. "He wanted me to go to the College on Roke to study with the Master Summoner. He was going to send me there. I decided not to go." more impressions. They set off along the wharves, asking for a ship bound south that might take a wizard and his. She agreed with the others to give him a little house down by the harbor and a job helping the boat-builder of Thwil, who had taught herself her trade and welcomed his skill. Veil put no difficulties in his path and always greeted him kindly. But she had said, "What can you tell me that would make me trust you?" and he had no answer for her. "If you'd like to come with me, she lives this way. And though she's only a girl, and poor, I'll. He stopped in front of her. Nobody fools with me. We make a pretty good living. Winters, I go stay with Mother and help her out. So I'm all right. What about you, Di?" "Wherever you like." Her ignorance and trustfulness could endanger her and therefore him. What did she and the bagman. "Destroy us? Destroy this hill? The trees there?" She looked down to a grove of trees not far from. And it was in these discussions that the school on Roke began. Ivory never noticed that the girl was ailing, nor the pear trees, nor the vines. He kept himself. if I'd left something unfinished. It was hard work out in the pastures. "Who doesn't do hard work?" Emer had asked, showing her. A woman of power, she knew what he was. Had she called him there? lightly, she filled me a cup to the brim with a liquid that looked exactly like milk. There were many such isles in the Archipelago, made barren and desolate by rival wizards' blights and curses; they were evil places to come to or even to pass, and Medra thought no more about this one, until that night. They sat unspeaking. The crisis passed. Heleth relaxed a little and even smiled. "Very old stuff," he said, "what I'll be doing. I wish now I'd thought about it more. Passed it on to you. But it seemed a bit crude. Heavy-handed ... She didn't say where she'd learned it. Here, of course ... There are different kinds of knowledge, after all." He recognized Hound, though he could not sit up and could barely speak. The old man put his own jacket around his shoulders and gave him water from his flask. Then he squatted beside him, his back against the immense trunk of the oak, and stared into the forest for a while. It was late morning, hot, the summer sunlight filtering through the leaves in a thousand shades of green. A squirrel scolded, far up in the oak, and a jay replied. Hound scratched his neck and sighed. will

He had with him a boy of fifteen, Mote, a promising weatherworker who needed training at sea, and Sava, a woman of sixty who had come to Roke with him seven or eight years before. Sava had been one of the women of the Hand on the isle of Ark. Though she had no wizardly gifts at all, she knew so well how to get a group of people to trust one another and work together that she was honored as a wise woman on Ark, and now on Roke. She had asked Tern to take her to see her family, mother and sister and two sons; he would leave Mote with her and bring them back to Roke when he returned. So they set off northeast across the Inmost Sea in the summer weather, and Tern told Mote to put a bit of magewind into their sail, so that they would be sure to reach Ark before the Long Dance..teaching him, petting him a bit as he had done yesterday. He sat down with him in the sun. Gelluk.Enlad to aid him, Morred turned and gave battle. The Enemy would not confront him directly, but."And what did you decide you want?".Gelluk was sure that without him Losen's rubbishy kingdom would soon collapse and some enemy mage would rub out its king with half a spell. But he let Losen act the master. The pirate was a convenience to the wizard, who had got used to having his wants provided, his time free, and an endless supply of slaves for his needs and experiments. It was easy to keep up the protections he had laid on Losen's person and expeditions and forays, the prisoning spells he had laid on the places slaves worked or treasures were kept. Making those spells had been a different matter, a long hard work. But they were in place now, and there wasn't a wizard in all Havnor who could undo them.."And what would I do there?".either side of the raised walkway that ran down the middle.
